REVUE CELTIQUE (17)

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 166 pages. Original publisher: Washington : U. S. G. P. O. , 2010. LC Number: KF26 . A35 2009b OCLC Number: (OCoLC)631251704 Subject: School children -- Food -- Government policy -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 11 For more than 50 years, school meals have been regulated at the Federal level. Each year, the Federal Government invests billions in school lunches and breakfasts, approximately 11. 7 billion in fi-nancial 2008 alone. Selling low-nutrition foods in schools under-mines this entire investment. The widespread availability of drinks high in sugar, chips, candy, cookies, and snack cakes in our schools also undermine our parents efforts to feed their children healthy and nutritious meals. You see, each school day, parents entrust schools to care for their children all across our nation. They should not have to worry that their children will use lunch money to buy snacks, you know, honey buns and Snickers, as opposed to buying a well-balanced meal. According to a national poll by the Robert Wood Johnson Foun-dation, 90 percent of parents and teachers support the conversion of school vending machine contents to healthy beverages and foods. In addition, a 2005 Wall Street Journal Harris Interactive poll found that 83 percent of all adult respondents think that public schools should do more to limit childrens access to unhealthy foods, like snack foods, sugary soft drinks, and fast foods. All across our nation, parents and community groups are making remarkable strides in addressing this issue. For example, the Con-necticut State PTA worked with a consortium of childrens health groups to pass State legislation which limits the beverages that can be served to students from any source on school campus, including vending machines and school stores. In addition, the law...
