Government Accountability Office, 2004 OCLC Number: (OCOLOC)57614224 Subject: Earned income tax credit. Excerpt: . . . This test involved two random samples of 25,000 taxpayers who claimed one or more qualifying children for tax year 2002: a test sample, whose members were asked to substantiate their qualifying child's residency, and a control sample, whose members had similar characteristics to the test sample, but were not asked for any substantiation. Both samples were designed to include taxpayers (1) most likely to make errors and (2) whose qualifying child eligibility could not be verified from information available to IRS. IRS used prior research results to determine which taxpayers would be most likely to incorrectly claim a qualifying child. The research showed that with those taxpayers most likely to make errors, the errors often correlated with the taxpayers' relationship to the child and the taxpayers' gender and filing status. Taxpayers most frequently making qualifying child errors included both fathers and males and females who were not the child's parents and who filed as single or head of household. IRS also used available data to obtain evidence about taxpayers and whether their qualifying children met residency and relationship requirements. For example, a child's residency could be established with some certainty by using the Department of Health and Human Services Federal Case Registry, and a child's relationship to the taxpayer could be established with some certainty using the Social Security Administration's KIDLINK. When this available evidence supported the taxpayers' EITC claim that they had a qualifying child, those taxpayers were excluded from the qualifying child test. Prior research showed that taxpayers who comply with the residency requirement...
